

THE "FARM" MILL
WAS STARTED UP

Twenty Mill Hands Only Were Required for the Work, There Being Plenty of Laborers Available in the Neighborhood.

Aug. 8.—The "Farm" mill, owned by the Lindsay and McCutcheon companies, was started at 7 o'clock this morning by non-union men. The mill is situated on the river, and yesterday afternoon the fires were lighted and everything placed in readiness for resuming work. No opposition was met with from the strikers, for almost to a man they were working in other union mills. They were away from their work when the "Farm" mill was started.

The mill was started, and the strikers patrolled every entrance to the mill and it was next to impossible for anyone to gain admission to the mill.

The mill is in operation in a finishing mill, and the strikers are making the preparations for starting the mill in operation in a finishing mill.

There is another mill in the neighborhood which turns out billets, and the strikers are making the preparations for starting the mill in operation in a finishing mill.

The strikers are making the preparations for starting the mill in operation in a finishing mill, and the mill is in operation in a finishing mill.

The strikers are making the preparations for starting the mill in operation in a finishing mill, and the mill is in operation in a finishing mill.

The strikers are making the preparations for starting the mill in operation in a finishing mill, and the mill is in operation in a finishing mill.

The strikers are making the preparations for starting the mill in operation in a finishing mill, and the mill is in operation in a finishing mill.

The strikers are making the preparations for starting the mill in operation in a finishing mill, and the mill is in operation in a finishing mill.

The strikers are making the preparations for starting the mill in operation in a finishing mill, and the mill is in operation in a finishing mill.

The strikers are making the preparations for starting the mill in operation in a finishing mill, and the mill is in operation in a finishing mill.

The strikers are making the preparations for starting the mill in operation in a finishing mill, and the mill is in operation in a finishing mill.

The strikers are making the preparations for starting the mill in operation in a finishing mill, and the mill is in operation in a finishing mill.

The strikers are making the preparations for starting the mill in operation in a finishing mill, and the mill is in operation in a finishing mill.

The strikers are making the preparations for starting the mill in operation in a finishing mill, and the mill is in operation in a finishing mill.

The strikers are making the preparations for starting the mill in operation in a finishing mill, and the mill is in operation in a finishing mill.

The strikers are making the preparations for starting the mill in operation in a finishing mill, and the mill is in operation in a finishing mill.

The strikers are making the preparations for starting the mill in operation in a finishing mill, and the mill is in operation in a finishing mill.

The strikers are making the preparations for starting the mill in operation in a finishing mill, and the mill is in operation in a finishing mill.

The strikers are making the preparations for starting the mill in operation in a finishing mill, and the mill is in operation in a finishing mill.

The strikers are making the preparations for starting the mill in operation in a finishing mill, and the mill is in operation in a finishing mill.

The strikers are making the preparations for starting the mill in operation in a finishing mill, and the mill is in operation in a finishing mill.

The strikers are making the preparations for starting the mill in operation in a finishing mill, and the mill is in operation in a finishing mill.

The strikers are making the preparations for starting the mill in operation in a finishing mill, and the mill is in operation in a finishing mill.

The strikers are making the preparations for starting the mill in operation in a finishing mill, and the mill is in operation in a finishing mill.

The strikers are making the preparations for starting the mill in operation in a finishing mill, and the mill is in operation in a finishing mill.

The strikers are making the preparations for starting the mill in operation in a finishing mill, and the mill is in operation in a finishing mill.

The strikers are making the preparations for starting the mill in operation in a finishing mill, and the mill is in operation in a finishing mill.

The strikers are making the preparations for starting the mill in operation in a finishing mill, and the mill is in operation in a finishing mill.

The strikers are making the preparations for starting the mill in operation in a finishing mill, and the mill is in operation in a finishing mill.

The strikers are making the preparations for starting the mill in operation in a finishing mill, and the mill is in operation in a finishing mill.

The strikers are making the preparations for starting the mill in operation in a finishing mill, and the mill is in operation in a finishing mill.

The strikers are making the preparations for starting the mill in operation in a finishing mill, and the mill is in operation in a finishing mill.

The strikers are making the preparations for starting the mill in operation in a finishing mill, and the mill is in operation in a finishing mill.

The strikers are making the preparations for starting the mill in operation in a finishing mill, and the mill is in operation in a finishing mill.

The strikers are making the preparations for starting the mill in operation in a finishing mill, and the mill is in operation in a finishing mill.

WANTED TO GIVE THE HULA DANCE.

Mrs. Theresa Wilcox Indignant at a Steamship Captain.

THE LAW SPOILS A ROMANCE

Little Chinese Bride Deported From Honolulu—Carried Striking From Courtroom.

Honolulu, July 27, via Victoria, B. C., Aug. 7.—Mrs. Theresa Wilcox, wife of the Hawaiian delegate to Congress, arrived in Honolulu full of indignation against Captain Dowell, of the Oceanic Steamship Zealandia, on which she came from San Francisco, because the captain had stopped her from giving a Hawaiian Hula dance in the salon on the last night before the vessel reached Honolulu. There was a young lady on board who was an adept at the Hula business and when the vessel was two days away from Honolulu she gave the well known dance. Mrs. Wilcox, who was a leading spirit in the various entertainments, throughout the voyage, furnishing the necessary music.

It appears that Captain Dowell looked in and saw the dance and gave orders that it be not repeated. The next night preparations were begun for another performance for the entertainment of the passengers when a quartermaster interrupted with the captain's order that the Hula be dispensed with. Mrs. Wilcox was highly indignant and at once sought the captain. She sent a message to him that she wanted to see him. Captain Dowell preferred not to be seen. He was on duty on the bridge and did not come down. Mrs. Wilcox waited at the foot of the bridge for a long time and then gave it up. She threatens to lodge a complaint against Dowell with the steamship company.

SPOLIING A ROMANCE.

A Chinese romance, with which the United States exclusion laws cruelly interfered, will end tomorrow with the deportation of a young girl named Kam You, on the order of United States Judge Este. She arrived here from China three weeks ago claiming to be the bride of one Jung Han, a wealthy Honolulu Chinese. At the trial of the case after she had been arrested for deportation it developed that the wedding had been according to Chinese customs. The bride and groom had never seen each other and when the marriage took place she was in China and he in Honolulu. After arriving in Honolulu, Kam You managed to get an opportunity to marry Han again, this time in the regular way, but it was of no avail. Judge Este decided that the Chinese marriage had not been completed and that he must decide the case according to the statutes, deciding that she was a single woman when she arrived in Honolulu. He ignored the subsequent marriage and ordered the woman deported and she was carried, shrieking, from the court room.

Young Han decided to give up all his interest in Honolulu and here he took up his home in China with his bride.

CHILD IS MISSING.

Another Chapter in the Notorious Divorce Case of Vail vs Vail.

In Judge Hall's court this morning an order issued requiring Mrs. Edith Vail to produce her child, Gladys, by 3 o'clock August 8th, or show cause why she should not be punished for contempt of court.

This is the latest development in the divorce proceedings in the case of Edith Vail vs Elmer A. Vail. On July 29th Judge Hall granted a decree of separation from his wife to the defendant in the above case on his cross-complaint and also gave him the custody of their 3-year-old daughter on the stipulation that the little girl should live with Judge and Mrs. W. W. Gee, where she could be visited by her mother.

Since the judgment was rendered by the court the whereabouts of the child has been unknown to her father and so the order granted this morning was issued for. Mr. Vail is of the opinion that his daughter Gladys is in the city and is being secreted by Mrs. Vail and some of her friends.

Judge Hall also granted the defendant in the above action permission to withdraw his life insurance policy.

CARNIVAL NOTES.

Interest Grows Apace in the Forthcoming Big Event.

The following additional booth space has been let by the committee in charge of the Elks' Street Fair and Carnival: J. Greenwald, Western Construction Co., Jenkins Bros. Co., Leyson & Co., Marshall Bros., McDonald & Co., Pries the Photographer, J. W. Farnell, Merchants who desire booth space within the carnival enclosure are requested to communicate at once with Secretary Slade of the committee on concessions and privileges.

The Jarboe Amusement Co.'s attractions consisting of one hundred and twenty-five people, which will be with in the carnival enclosure will have ten distinct shows. Arabian Village, Streets of Cairo, Oriental Theater, Mexican Theater, Alcazar Theater, German Village, Animal Show, streets of All Nations, Austin Sisters, Spanish Fandango Dancers.

A special booth has been reserved for the live elk within the carnival enclosure. Four booths have been reserved by the executive committee for the press of Salt Lake City. An invitation will be extended to each chief state executive and his staff throughout the United States to participate in the Governor's Day Program, which is Sept. 16th. Governors' Day has been named in honor of the Hon. Heber M. Wells, chief executive of the State of Utah. On Commercial Travelers' Day D. W. McAllister, chairman of that committee reports that he is receiving every encouragement from the "Knights of the Grip." Elks' Purple Day, Sept. 25th, is attracting attention amongst the Elks' lodges throughout the United States. A list of representatives from the lodges is increasing every day. It may be possible that some of the Grand Lodge officers may also attend at the christening of the live elk. The visiting brothers have registered at carnival headquarters today: R. W. Lowry, No. 13 Indianapolis, Ind. Chas. W. Haynes, No. 52 Chillicothe, Ohio.

OFFICIAL PROGRAM.

The following letter received by the "News" this afternoon is self-explanatory: Will you be kind enough and publish through the columns of your valuable edition that some unauthorized persons are soliciting advertisements from the merchants of Salt Lake City for the Elks' street fair and carnival official program. No person is authorized to do any soliciting nor will there be anyone authorized to do so. The Elks' street fair and carnival souvenir program will consist of half-tens of the members of Salt Lake Lodge No. 85, and a history of the Order of Elks from its foundation to date. No advertisements will appear in the program whatsoever. The program will also contain the official proceedings for the week.

Yours respectfully,
FREDERICK F. STOLL,
Director General.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Trenton, N. J.—Ex-Governor Wm. A. Newell died at noon today at his home in Allentown, Pa.

Cronberg.—The remains of the Dowager-Emress Frederick were placed in a coffin early this morning.

Buffalo.—The condition of Senator Vickers, the Chilean minister, who is seriously ill in this city, was reported unchanged this morning.

San Francisco.—Neither the detectives nor the officials of the Seby smelting works will give out anything regarding the robbery of the smelting works.

Indianapolis.—A dispatch received here says the Galveston in Cass county, is burning and the fire is beyond control. Help has been sent from Kokomo and other towns.

London.—Lord Kitchener, in a despatch from Pretoria today, announces that a post of 25 men, belonging to the 2nd Buffs, was captured by the Boers.

London.—The agent of the foreign bondholders cables from Caracas today that the payment of the Venezuelan external debt of 1881 has been suspended, but that the government intends to shortly resume it.

New York.—Special to the Herald, from Hamburg, says: While the service is taking place on Sunday at Cronberg church, Canon Teichmuth, Shore will preach at the memorial service at Hamburg.

Cleveland, Ohio.—At the headquarters of the Shelby Tube company in this city, President Boynton today confirmed the statement that the company had passed into the control of the United States Steel corporation.

New York.—Miss Mary Pickens, granddaughter of the famous war governor of South Carolina and daughter of the late James W. Pickens of Corinth, Miss has just married at her home in this city Arthur Shirley, of Camden House, Faleshill, Coventry, England.

Brest, France.—The German cruiser Hela arrived here today. Her commander, Admiral von Dore, had heard of the death of the Dowager-Emress Frederick. He called for mail and said he would sail again immediately and notify Prince Henry of Prussia, who is expected here this evening or tomorrow morning.

Washington.—Professor Willis L. Moore, chief of the weather bureau, and acting secretary of agriculture, is going to Yellowstone Park to inspect that region with a view to locating a weather station there. This action has been suggested by Captain H. M. Chittenden, U. S. A., with the approval of the secretary of war.

Washington.—The annual report of Major General MacArthur, dated July 1, 1901, has just been received at the headquarters of the division of the Philippines. The report covered the period from October 1, 1900, when the last report from General MacArthur was dated.

The Leavenworth, Kans., lodge of Eagles had scheduled a ten-round contest tonight between Pat Earle of Boston and Joe Curtin of Chicago, besides chicken fights and vaudeville turns. Kansas has a stringent law against prize fighting and the governor insists that it be observed. He therefore wired the sheriff to prevent the fight.

Washington.—A despatch has been received at the war department from Col. Long, quartermaster at San Francisco, stating that a serious condition exists there as the result of the strike. It has been found impossible to procure skilled labor, and almost impossible to find labor of any kind to work on the ships. For this reason the government will turn the transport fleet over to her owners without removing the government fittings.

TEN PERSONS BADLY HURT.

Two Sections of an Excursion Train Collide Near Pittsburg.

A MISTAKE IN THE SIGNALS

This is Supposed to Have Been the Cause—A Number Were Slightly Injured.

Pittsburg, Aug. 8.—Two sections of an Atlantic City excursion train collided near Confluence, 84 miles east of Pittsburg, about 11 o'clock this morning. Ten persons were seriously injured and a number of others slightly hurt. Those seriously hurt were: Fireman Shannon, Pittsburg, probably fatally.

P. J. Collins, wife and infant, Youngstown, badly bruised, serious but not dangerous.

J. H. Davis, New Castle, Pa., arm broken and badly bruised.

Mrs. J. H. Davis, New Castle, Pa., arm broken and badly bruised.

A. Q. Shaw, Pittsburg, badly cut about head.

Miss Helen Pemont, Pittsburg, head cut.

Miss Dora Hartzell, New Castle, both legs fractured.

J. E. Stillwagon, Conneville, superintendent water works, arm crushed.

The trains left here shortly after 8 o'clock this morning. At Confluence the first section was stopped and the second section rounded the curve, going at the rate of 35 miles, crashed into it. The engine of the second section and three cars were wrecked and traffic was delayed several hours. The injured named were removed to the hospital and the others continued on their way to Atlantic City. The accident is supposed to have been caused by a mistake in signals.

A Conneville dispatch says there were three big sections of the express. As the third section neared Confluence the engineer suddenly saw looming up before him on the same track the rear end of the second section. It was then too late to avoid the disaster and the engine and fireman of the third section jumped. The third section crashed into the Pullman car of the rear of the second section, telescoping it. The people in the car were mingled with the debris and many were seriously hurt. The total list number about ten. Messages were immediately sent to Conneville and a train of three passenger coaches was made up and hurried to the scene. On board were three physicians. The injured were brought to Atlantic City. With the exception of the fireman all, it is thought, will recover.

BRIDGE IN COURT.

Man Accused of Vile Crime Declines to Plead.

This afternoon in Judge Timmony's court, Joseph Bridge, a plasterer, was arraigned on the charge of raping Helen Lucille Budd, a 9-year-old girl, the daughter of George Budd, a saloon keeper on the West side.

The assault is alleged to have been committed on the 21st of July last. The child became very sick and upon an examination by Dr. Fisher the facts became known. The child told her parents several assaults made upon her by Bridge. Yesterday afternoon her father swore to a complaint and last evening Officer Gillespie located the man at his home, 666 West North Temple street. He is a man about 35 years of age and has a record for rape here. He is unmarried and claims he was raised here. When the complaint was read to him, he said he would not plead until he consulted with counsel. His case was set for Monday at 10 o'clock, and in default of $500 bail he was sent to the county jail.

COST $7,000.

Last night's experience with electrical storms was the most expensive in the history of the Utah Light & Power company, damage to the extent of about $7,000 having been done.

SHEA GETS A BERTH.

[Special to the "News."]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 8.—W. E. Shea, of Pocatello, Idaho, has been appointed to position in the treasury department.

SALT LAKE'S BIGGEST GUN THIEF.

Caught Red-Handed With Several Hundred Dollars' Worth of Revolvers Stolen from the Western Arms and Sporting Goods Company.

They were amazed to find it half full of revolvers.

The man submitted quietly to arrest and did not deny that he had burglarized the store. At the station he gave his name as Ed. Allen, but further than that refused to talk. The officers went back to the store and continued their investigation.

They found a rear window in the basement pried open and the iron bars which protected it forced apart. The thief accomplished this with a piece of iron and once inside the rest was easy. Solerling a large leather carry-all which suited his fancy, he went to the show case which contained the most valuable stock and literally cleaned it out. He ignored the inferior weapons entirely. When the clerks arrived at the store this morning they were dumbfounded when informed by the officers of the burglary. The manager learned of it and immediately went to the station and identified the goods. He said that by actual cost the lot was worth the amount above stated.

A complaint will be filed charging Allen with burglary.

This afternoon four more revolvers were found by Capt. Dobson.

They were covered over with dirt in the rear of the Co-op. Allen told Dobson where they were, and also said he had a kid with him who assisted in the job.

The guns were taken to the police station and placed with the rest. It is said that Allen says the will plead guilty to burglary and get started on his sentence at once.

MARVELOUS MELODY
OF GREAT ORGAN

Electrifies and Uplifts Kentucky Visitors, Who Later Are Received at the Bee-Hive by President Snow.

ELECTRIFIES AND UPLIFTS KENTUCKY VISITORS,

Who Later Are Received at the Bee-Hive by President Snow.

"I'll sing one song for my old Kentucky home, For my old Kentucky home, far away."

From the rolling hills of old Kentucky where the waving blue grass shimmers in a southern sun, there has come a merry party of newspaper men with their wives and their sweethearts to take possession of Salt Lake City. This morning they have been not alone the guests of the Utah Press association, whom they came to visit, but the people of Salt Lake, in and out of the craft, have been happy and proud to receive them and to do them honor. "The City of the Saints" has opened its doors and extended a hand of warmest welcome.

In performing this service, there has been a cordiality and a heartiness of such genuine nature that there can be no mistake in the minds of visiting Kentuckians as to the regard in which their fair state is held. There has been a little element of pride, too, in showing these from the south the historic points of interest which link the Salt Lake of the old days with the present growing metropolis of the great West. Much interest was manifested by the visitors in the sights of the city, and the questions asked were far more intelligent than are the usual run of tourists' interrogations.

All morning long and through the afternoon, the scribblers from the Blue Grass state have fairly owned the city. Up and down East Temple street, in and out around the Temple grounds, the little red badges which they wear have been the passport to hospitality. And they have done their part, too, in making the occasion of their visit to Salt Lake a pleasant one. Formality is a word practically unknown in their lexicon, and they have surrendered themselves to the program arranged by the press with a willingness that was refreshing. One crowd of news writers, in which there was more than one gray head, went along First South after the Tabernacle recital, singing, as only southerners sing, that tender song, "My Old Kentucky Home." The fact that the street was crowded with marketers didn't deter them from their little serenade, and the people regarded them with smiling interest.

The program arranged for their entertainment was, too, one in which there was little formality and an abundance of chances to form acquaintances. This morning at 9 o'clock a reception began at the Kenyon which afforded ample opportunity for the members of the Utah Press association and their friends to meet the editors from the bourbon state. The parlors of the hotel were crowded for nearly two hours, a most enjoyable morning being spent.

The reception over, the party adjourned in straggling couples and threes to the great organ, as played by McClellan. That it was a surprise to the visitors, who have listened so often to the soft southern melodies that float across the organ, when the warlike summer evening comes on and the dusk gathers thick around the old plantation porch, would be putting it in far too mild terms to express the truth.

Prof. McClellan was at his best, and as the tones filled the big building, now lifted and now like the quiet sobbing of a little child, and now sonorous and thrilling with the "Vox humana," looks of surprise first came over the features of the visitors, followed by intense interest. At the conclusion of each number, there was a burst of conversation heard among the Kentuckians, and words of admiration were expressed on every side.

"This is the grandest thing I ever heard," said one man from the Blue Grass state. "It's wonderful. I will never forget it."

When the familiar tones of "Way Down South in Dixie"—familiar even to those of the North and the West—came rolling out from the big organ, the enthusiasm of the Kentuckians could hardly be contained. Beautiful girls with dancing eyes nodded their heads in time to the music and hummed the words. "Dixie" is a dashing song, and as played this morning by Prof. McClellan, it fairly brought the crowd to its feet.

The usual crowd of local music lovers was there, glad they had come, for the recital was one of the best that has been given here. It was interesting, too, to watch the looks of interest on the faces of the visitors and note their changing expressions, the index to their emotions.

That they were deeply touched by the music was evidenced by the remarks made by Judge Kelly of Bardonia at the conclusion of the program. As the people arose to go, President D. P. Felt turned and announced that Judge Kelly would like to say a few words.

The judge, who looks for all the world like the southern gentleman in the plays, was standing in the center of the gallery, and was heard distinctly in every part of the big building.

"Our friends of Utah," he began, and everybody paused to listen. "From my old Kentucky home comes a voice telling me to thank this people for the cordiality and the hospitality they have shown us since we arrived in your fair city. We cannot say enough to thank you. We cannot say too much in praise of Utah. When we return to our homes in Kentucky, it will be with the hope that we have established friendships that will not be broken."

They were covered over with dirt in the rear of the Co-op. Allen told Dobson where they were, and also said he had a kid with him who assisted in the job.

The guns were taken to the police station and placed with the rest. It is said that Allen says the will plead guilty to burglary and get started on his sentence at once.

THE ORGAN RECITAL.

The organ recital began with "My Old Kentucky Home," and the first few notes were drowned in the warm ap-

MARVELOUS MELODY
OF GREAT ORGAN

Electrifies and Uplifts Kentucky Visitors, Who Later Are Received at the Bee-Hive by President Snow.

ELECTRIFIES AND UPLIFTS KENTUCKY VISITORS,

Who Later Are Received at the Bee-Hive by President Snow.

"I'll sing one song for my old Kentucky home, For my old Kentucky home, far away."

From the rolling hills of old Kentucky where the waving blue grass shimmers in a southern sun, there has come a merry party of newspaper men with their wives and their sweethearts to take possession of Salt Lake City. This morning they have been not alone the guests of the Utah Press association, whom they came to visit, but the people of Salt Lake, in and out of the craft, have been happy and proud to receive them and to do them honor. "The City of the Saints" has opened its doors and extended a hand of warmest welcome.

In performing this service, there has been a cordiality and a heartiness of such genuine nature that there can be no mistake in the minds of visiting Kentuckians as to the regard in which their fair state is held. There has been a little element of pride, too, in showing these from the south the historic points of interest which link the Salt Lake of the old days with the present growing metropolis of the great West. Much interest was manifested by the visitors in the sights of the city, and the questions asked were far more intelligent than are the usual run of tourists' interrogations.

All morning long and through the afternoon, the scribblers from the Blue Grass state have fairly owned the city. Up and down East Temple street, in and out around the Temple grounds, the little red badges which they wear have been the passport to hospitality. And they have done their part, too, in making the occasion of their visit to Salt Lake a pleasant one. Formality is a word practically unknown in their lexicon, and they have surrendered themselves to the program arranged by the press with a willingness that was refreshing. One crowd of news writers, in which there was more than one gray head, went along First South after the Tabernacle recital, singing, as only southerners sing, that tender song, "My Old Kentucky Home." The fact that the street was crowded with marketers didn't deter them from their little serenade, and the people regarded them with smiling interest.

The program arranged for their entertainment was, too, one in which there was little formality and an abundance of chances to form acquaintances. This morning at 9 o'clock a reception began at the Kenyon which afforded ample opportunity for the members of the Utah Press association and their friends to meet the editors from the bourbon state. The parlors of the hotel were crowded for nearly two hours, a most enjoyable morning being spent.

The reception over, the party adjourned in straggling couples and threes to the great organ, as played by McClellan. That it was a surprise to the visitors, who have listened so often to the soft southern melodies that float across the organ, when the warlike summer evening comes on and the dusk gathers thick around the old plantation porch, would be putting it in far too mild terms to express the truth.

Prof. McClellan was at his best, and as the tones filled the big building, now lifted and now like the quiet sobbing of a little child, and now sonorous and thrilling with the "Vox humana," looks of surprise first came over the features of the visitors, followed by intense interest. At the conclusion of each number, there was a burst of conversation heard among the Kentuckians, and words of admiration were expressed on every side.

"This is the grandest thing I ever heard," said one man from the Blue Grass state. "It's wonderful. I will never forget it."

When the familiar tones of "Way Down South in Dixie"—familiar even to those of the North and the West—came rolling out from the big organ, the enthusiasm of the Kentuckians could hardly be contained. Beautiful girls with dancing eyes nodded their heads in time to the music and hummed the words. "Dixie" is a dashing song, and as played this morning by Prof. McClellan, it fairly brought the crowd to its feet.

The usual crowd of local music lovers was there, glad they had come, for the recital was one of the best that has been given here. It was interesting, too, to watch the looks of interest on the faces of the visitors and note their changing expressions, the index to their emotions.

That they were deeply touched by the music was evidenced by the remarks made by Judge Kelly of Bardonia at the conclusion of the program. As the people arose to go, President D. P. Felt turned and announced that Judge Kelly would like to say a few words.

The judge, who looks for all the world like the southern gentleman in the plays, was standing in the center of the gallery, and was heard distinctly in every part of the big building.

"Our friends of Utah," he began, and everybody paused to listen. "From my old Kentucky home comes a voice telling me to thank this people for the cordiality and the hospitality they have shown us since we arrived in your fair city. We cannot say enough to thank you. We cannot say too much in praise of Utah. When we return to our homes in Kentucky, it will be with the hope that we have established friendships that will not be broken."

They were covered over with dirt in the rear of the Co-op. Allen told Dobson where they were, and also said he had a kid with him who assisted in the job.

The guns were taken to the police station and placed with the rest. It is said that Allen says the will plead guilty to burglary and get started on his sentence at once.

THE ORGAN RECITAL.

The organ recital began with "My Old Kentucky Home," and the first few notes were drowned in the warm applause with which it was greeted. The Kentuckians cheered for the sympathy towards them that the playing of the famous old melody indicated and the local applauded to see their visiting friends so greatly pleased. Prof. McClellan then played "Visions in a Dream," by Lumley, which was well received.

The solo by Miss Arvilla Clark, "Till Death," raised a storm of applause, and the people clamored for an encore but Prof. Goddard announced at the outset that no encores would be allowed because of the length of the program. Miss Clark's voice was charming; it never sounded better. The organ piece that followed Miss Clark was the old but ever delightful favorite "Andantino," and stirred the feelings of the audience profoundly.

Little Miss Tillie Williams rushed into the hearts of the visitors with her song, "She was Bred in Old Kentucky." The child was showered with applause in the hope of inducing her to sing again, but she declined.

Prof. Goddard carried his audience off its feet in an unparalleled rendition of "Hoanah." And the program, which was plainly a feast to all those present, closed on the lawn in front of the Bee-Hive and a photograph was taken of the group.

Many remained to have a talk with President Snow and his wife.

LUNCHEON AND LAKE.

After the reception luncheon was taken at the Kenyon, and at 4:30 the party went to Saltair, where the following dancing program will be given this evening:

"Blue Grass" two-step.
"Pennyroyal"